Savignano sul Rubicone

SAVIGNANO SUL RUBICONE

Belongs to the province of Forlì - Cesena. It has a population of 14.786 inhabitants (Savignano) and a surface of 23,2 square kilometers.

History of our town

The Rubicon (in Italian Rubicone) is an ancient Latin name for a small river in Romagna. During Roman times it flowed into the Adriatic sea between ariminium and Caesena. The river was considered to mark the boundary between the Roman province of cisalpine Gaul to the north and Italy proper to the south; the boundry thus protected the republic from internal military threat.

History of our town

When Julius Caesar crossed the Rubicon in 49 BC, to make his way to Rome, he broke that law and made armed conflict inevitable. According to Suetonius he uttered the famous phrase alea iacta est ("the die is cast").

THE CASTLE OF RIBANO

On the hills above the town there is the Castel of Ribano, on the main route from Savignano sul Rubicone to Sogliano al Rubicone. During the French Revolution, Giocchino Rasponi, captured the Castel of Ribano.

Our Food

Piadina romagnola is an unleavened type of bread boasting very ancient origins. Originally, it was cooked on a stone which has now been replaced by the iron frying pan. Piadina is the symbol of our regional gastronomy and should be eaten like a sandwich filled with local cold cuts & cheese such as Parma Ham or squacquerone.

Our Seaside

Savignano also stretches its territory to the magnificent Adriatic sea coast, with hotels and seaside establishments, and endless amusement parks for all ages.

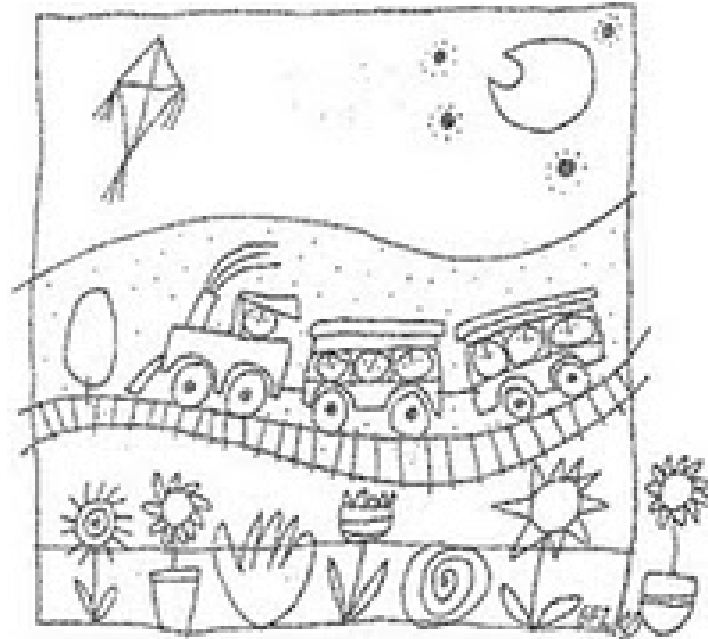

Our School

JULIUS CAESAR MIDDLE SCHOOL

Our school, named after the Roman emperor Julius Caesar, is located in the centre of Savignano. The school has more than 400 students.
